Thank you, Kashmir. I am discounting by 10 percent my billing to Jus Pujabi, and the discount will be reflected on my invoices.

~~I am thankful by the way, I have been still in real pain. The doctors continue to be very optimistic that they worked their magical healing arts. I've just decided to accept that assessment and relying on my belief in God and the fact that she is a very strong young woman.~~

Your call the other day was one of the kindest gestures anyone has ever made to me.

Dear and respected Friend,

Please accept my apology for responding late as I have been extremely busy with a closing which might happen tomorrow. Penny told me that she will never call Karl and will fight this case to the end. I tried to call Karl but he do not respond to me anymore. I agree with you your position of settling the case. In my opinion and experience "humility" has always prevailed over litigation.

Second: I'm taking the liberty of sending you this note I sent to Penny. Last night she emailed me asking if we could talk about Karl this morning. I said yes but have not heard from her. I don't know whether when you so kindly called over the weekend about my daughter that we discussed Penny. I don't think we did. But the day before you and I spoke I did speak to Penny whose laments about the Karl lawsuit are always the same. I suggested to her that, when there is disagreement, sometimes it is best for the principals to speak directly to each other to hear from the horse's mouth what the problems and issues are. She said she would call Karl. I don't know whether she did. What I do know is that the court rules require me to respond in writing to the motion Karl's lawyers made to dismiss her counterclaims about disparagement, etc. As of this moment, neither Penny nor Karl appears to be budging and unfortunately I have to put in the time to work on her papers. I'd prefer to see the case settle rather than continue to run up legal fees. I know there's nothing more you can do and Penny would probably be annoyed with me for letting you know this, so let's keep it between ourselves. I simply thought you should know.

Penny, Did you want to talk today regarding Karl? I have been in the office since 8 but need to leave by 2 [REDACTED] In the meantime, I am preparing because I have to the papers in opposition to Karl's lawyers' motion to dismiss your counterclaims for disparagement and stealing and attempting to steal some of your employees.
